

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER.

THE GAZETTE.

MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 11.
HOME, SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

It was the opinion of Sir Walter Scott that the following beautiful lines of Byron's are the best that erratic poet ever wrote, and stand prominent among the poetic gems of literature:

There is a mystic thread of life,
So dearly won with mine alone,
That destiny's relentless knife
At once must sever both or none.

There is a form on which these eyes
Have often gazed with fond delight;
By day that form with joy supplies,
And dreams restore it through the night.

There is a voice whose tones inspire
Such thrills of rapture through my breast,
I would not hear a sordid choir
Unless that voice should join the rest.

There is a face whose blushes tell
Affection's care upon the cheek,
But pallid at one fond farewell,
Proclaims more love than words can speak.

There is a lip which mine have pressed,
And none have ever pressed before;
It vowed to make me sweetly blessed,
And mine, mine only pressed it more.

There is a bosom all my own
Hath pillowed off this aching head;
And mouth which smiles on me alone,
And eyes whose tears with mine are shed.

There are two hearts whose movements thrill
In union so closely sweet,
That pulse to pulse responsive still,
They both must heave or cease to beat.

There are two souls whose equal flow
In gentle streams so calmly run
That when they part—they part in ah, no!
They cannot part—these souls are one!
